TEACHER'S MESSAGE

Pressing times often impede our success, leading us to dwell on our frailties rather than our strengths. Yet, the arduous paths of hard work and perseverance always bear sweet fruit. While we often attribute others' successes to fate, it's crucial to remember that fate favours those who strive relentlessly for their goals. The pursuit of our goals is a never-ending task, echoing Tagore's vision for his country: "Where tireless striving stretches its arms towards perfection."

INFORMATION CORNER

The brain uses more energy than any other organ in our body – over 20% of our daily energy intake! Due to brain development, the calorie/KJ intake for children especially fats is higher to meet their developmental needs. Everything from learning, to memory and attentiveness, is affected by the foods we consume. Healthy eating in early childhood may even yield benefits that are only measurable later in life. Young children, whose brains are rapidly developing, need a nutrient-dense diet to help them as they process the world around them. Without the right nutrients, toddlers and preschoolers might struggle to develop the skills to maintain concentration, which becomes increasingly important as they get older.
